COCAINE HABIT OBJECT OF HEALTH LEAGUE ACTIVITY

Movement to Control Sale of Deadly Drug and Curb its Distribution.

New York, May 24.—Calling upon Congress for a form of tariff protection that will guard American homes from the ravages of the cocaine habit, thousands of medical men, philanthropic workers and the principal drug houses in this city are supporting the recommendation of the American Health League for federal control of the deadly drug. Only by placing a prohibitory duty on foreign cocaine, with which the illegal distributors are supplied by defiance of state laws, can the growth of drug dives throughout the country be checked, the leaders of the movement declare. From every section reports have been received showing that the people are ready to demand this relief from the vice that is spreading.

Only 50 per cent of the cocaine consumed in the United States last year was devoted to legitimate uses, experts are prepared to show. While American manufacturers and wholesalers are refusing to pander to the increasing demands of the illicit distributors and can be held accountable by state and local authorities for their sales, no hold can be obtained on the underground supply of the drug from abroad. Coca leaves, from which the drug victims may extract a form of cocaine with which to meet their craving, are free of duty and easily available.

Leaders of the reform movement have presented to the finance committee of the Senate the people's claims for protection. A prohibitory tariff of $1.50 an ounce on the foreign supply of the drug is recommended as well as a duty of five cents a pound on the coca leaves, which will give Uncle Sam control of their distribution.

MISS MAGGIE BOWLES COMMITTS SUICIDE.

Report that Deed was Result of Misunderstanding with Sweetheart.

Madisonville, Ky., May 25.—Miss Maggie Bowles, about twenty years of age, who lives in the north part of town, committed suicide by shooting herself through the heart. The deed was committed in the presence of the family. The bullet was from a 32-caliber pistol, fired into the heart, and death was almost instantaneous.

Miss Bowles was engaged to be married to a young man who lives a few miles out in the country. He called yesterday morning with his buggy and he and his sweetheart went to church at Olive Branch, a church about eight miles from Madisonville. During the day a lovers' quarrel arose, and it is supposed that this so preyed on her mind that she resolved to take her own life.

Attractive Program Filled House to Standing Room Sunday Morning.

The celebration of Children's Day at the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, on Sunday drew a record-breaking attendance to witness a beautiful and interesting program of songs and other exercises by the younger children of the school. Flowers were profusely used in the form of wreaths and wands and bouquets and the little girls all had their hair decorated with roses. Mrs. Morrison, Misses Orenshaw, Boarders and others lent their best efforts to training the children for the occasion, Mrs. Morrison being commander-in-chief of the musical exercises and the children showed the effects of patient training. A special collection was taken which amounted to more than $17. The church was filled to standing room.

FOUR CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

Tearful Ending of Home Musical Entertainment, at Central City.

NELL MCGARY, DAUGHTER OF F. E. MCGARY AMONG THE NUMBER.

Central City, Ky., May 25.—Four little girls are dead as a result of an accident during a musical class exhibited at Gish's Opera House last night, when the dress of one of the little girls became ignited from an electric candle and set fire to the other children next her. All Central City is in mourning tonight for the sad fate that brought so much sorrow, not only to the parents of the victims, but to the entire community.

All day business has been almost suspended here and everyone has worn an anxious face and waited with bated breaths news from the bedsides of the little unfortunates. But only sad news came in every instance where the victims were badly buried.

Nell McGary, 5 years old, daughter of F. E. McGary, manager of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, died this morning about 4 o'clock this afternoon, Zelma Clay, 5 years old, and Dorothy Clay, 7 years old, daughters of Allen Clay, foreman of the Central City foundry, passed away. They were beautiful children and with their death Mr. and Mrs. Clay are left childless.

Later during the afternoon Louise Marshall, 12 years old, daughter of Mrs. William Marshall, of Morgantown, and niece of Councilman William Holtsey, died.

Rena May Miller, 5 years old, daughter of W. W. Miller, a merchant is said to be fatally burned and her death is momentarily expected.

Nell McGary's remains were taken to Madisonville, for burial this afternoon. Louise Marshall will be taken to Morgantown for burial tomorrow.

Mrs. B. C. Boyd, to whose music class the little children belonged and who was giving the entertainment, had her hands and hair badly burned and is in a precarious condition as a result of her injuries and nervous prostration. Her heroic efforts in putting out the fire saved several of her pupils from the sad fate met by four of them. Her home is surrounded by solicitous friends and numerous inquiries throughout the day show the appreciation of the parents of the little ones who were saved.

Little Nell McGary was buried yesterday morning from the home of her uncle, John McGary, at Madisonville. The interment was at Odd Fellows Cemetery. Her father, F. E. McGary, was formerly for some years a resident of Earlington and has numerous relatives here and in the county.

GEN. JOHNSON HAS RESIGNED

Gov. Willson Speaks Most Highly of Him and May Not Accept Resignation.

GOVERNOR HAS DONE NOTHING TO OFFEND THE GENERAL.

Frankfort, Ky., May 25.—Resenting what he thought was an insinuation against him, Adj't Gen. P. P. Johnston has resigned his position and written a scorching letter to Gov. Willson, giving his reason for taking the step. Following this Gen. Johnston left for Florida to spend several weeks on his plantation there. It is probable that Gov. Willson will decline to accept his resignation and will endeavor to induce Gen. Johnston to withdraw his resignation, as Gov. Willson holds Gen. Johnston in the highest esteem and has the greatest confidence in his judgment and ability.

The resignation of Gen. Johnston followed a split with Gov. Willson, that is a split of which Gov. Willson knew nothing. Gen. Johnston is a very sensitive man, self contained and unostentatious. He and Gov. Willson have not only been close in an official way, but have been intimate personal friends. Gen. Johnston has frequently taken meals at the mansion and was thoroughly at home there. If Gen. Johnston thought that any reflection had been cast upon him he would either fight the man who cast the reflection or would say nothing about it. If the reflection was cast by his superior, Gen. Johnston would do nothing but promptly hand in his resignation.

Asked About Expenditures.

It is reported here that Gen. Johnston thought Gov. Willson had reflected on him by the method he adopted in making an investigation into the monetary affairs of the State. Gov. Willson has asked the State Auditor for many items of expenditure in an effort to discover some way to cut down expenses and it is said that the Governor wanted to know how the money of the military department had been spent. It is said that Gen. Johnston thought that this was a reflection on him and that the Governor meant to insinuate that the affairs of the military department have not been properly managed. It is said that the Governor wanted to know whether or not the expenditure for the military branch had been exceeded.

Gov. Willson was surprised this morning when he was asked if Gen. Johnston had resigned, and he said he would not believe the resignation had been tendered until he saw the letter. The Governor, however, received Gen. Johnston's resignation this afternoon. Regarding Gen. Johnston, Gov. Willson said:

"I have the highest personal regard for Gen. Johnston and consider him an able man in every way. I have never done anything to offend him and I know of nothing that could have caused him to resign." Gen. Johnston and I have been intimate friends outside of official life, and I know of nothing that has been done to hurt his feelings, even though he is a sensitive man."

PRESIDENT TAFT ACCEPTS

Made a Trustee of Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute.

Hampton, W. Va., May 28.—At the commencement exercises at the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute today a letter was read from President Taft in which he announces his acceptance of a place on the Board of Trustees of that school for the education of the negro and the Indian.

Mr. Taft's letter to Dr. H. B. Frissell, Principal of the school, was as follows:

"White House, Washington, D. C., May 14, 1909.—My Dear Mr. Frissell: I have your note announcing my election as a member of the Board of Hampton Trustees. I consider it an honor to be one of them, and shall be very glad to contribute what little I can to the continued success of the school. Very sincerely yours, "WILLIAM H. TAFT."

UGANDA NEEDS "FIGGERS"

Natives Must Learn to Compute How Many Animals Roosevelt Kills.

Denver, May 24.—"The board of foreign missions wants more arithmetics. These books are needed by the natives in Uganda, who wish to be able to compute the number of lions and tigers and giraffes slain by our beloved former President."

This was one of the requests by Dr. Judson Swift, D. D., of New York, secretary of the American Tract Society, who spoke before the general assembly of the Presbyterian church today.

"The greatest work yet to be done by the church," he added, "lies in the American home. America never will be saved until the threshhold of the home is crossed. It is all very well to preach from the churches, but the home remains unchristian."

FOR YOUR HEALTH'S SAKE

HOW CONTAGION IS SPREAD.

Health officials have found that more contagion is spread from children than are supposed to be well than from those who are known to be sick. In cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria this is often true. The patient may appear to be well, but the germs are still present and it is therefore dangerous for him to mingle with children that are really well.

BAILEY FAILS TO FIX DATE OF VOTE

ATTITUDE OF PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICANS WHO FAVOR INCOME TAX FOIL PLAN.

SENATE INSURGENTS OFFENDED

Republicans Who Are Supporting Cummins Amendment Desire Continuation of the Coalition With Democrats.

Washington, May 26.—Had it not been for the attitude of the progressive Republicans, who favor the adoption of an income tax amendment to the tariff bill, it is probable that Senator Bailey might have reached an agreement with members of the finance committee for a vote on his amendment on June 10th.

Offense was taken by some of the so-called insurgent Republicans because of the notice served by the Texas senator, that no general agreement could be obtained on any phase of the tariff bill, so long as Senator Aldrich refused permission for the fixing of a time for a vote on Senator Bailey's income tax amendment. It was made clear at informal conferences that the Republicans who are supporting the Cummins amendment desire the continuance of the coalition with the Democrats, but that they did not want it at the expense of surrendering the control of the income tax fight to the Democrats.

Senator Cummins conveyed this view to Senator Bailey.

Before this action was taken, however, a conference was held by the Republican members of the finance committee relative to fixing a time for a vote on the income tax question and all other amendments to the tariff bill. In the opinion of the members of the committee, the work on schedules will be completed by June 10 and they could see no reason, therefore, for resisting the fixing of a time for a vote on the Bailey amendment beyond that time.

Senator Cummins said that he would offer his income tax amendment just as soon as consideration of schedules had been concluded. He will revise his amendment to meet the wishes of a number of Republicans. It will provide for a flat rate of two per cent on incomes, including corporations. A draw-back will be allowed to individual stockholders of corporations equal to the sum paid on their stock by the corporation itself, when it can be shown by the individual that the total of his income is less than $5,000 a year.

Mr. Bailey amendment provides for a tax of three per cent.

Mr. Cummins said that if the Bailey amendment is presented first that he will vote for it, although he does not believe that it would prove as satisfactory as his own.

He estimated that his amendment will produce about forty million a year in revenues.

Members of the finance committee are confident that they have sufficient votes to refer either the Cummins, or the Bailey amendment or both to the judiciary committee.

FATAL 4 CORNERED DUEL

Two Are Killed, One Fatally Injured and a Bystander is Shot During Fight.

Charlotte, N. C., May 26.—Arthur and Andy Franklin were shot to death in Laurel township, a remote section of Madison county, in a four-cornered duel in which the Franklins were arrayed against the Tweed brothers.

Robert Tweed and Arthur Franklin met at the store of Arthur Franklin and both opened fire. Andy Franklin endeavored to stop the fight, it is said, but Major Tweed interfered and both drawing pistols the fight became general. Andy Franklin was instantly killed, Arthur Franklin died of his wounds and Major Tweed received a serious wound in the thigh. Beverly Stanton a bystander was shot in the thigh.

Omaha, Neb., May 26.—Arrangements have been made between the Northern Pacific, the Union Pacific and the Great Northern roads, under which the Northern Pacific line between South Tacoma and Vancouver, Wash., and the bridge over the Columbia river will be used jointly by the three companies named.

WINNING THE FIGHT.

The cause of consumption is well known. The manner in which it is transmitted is well understood. Methods of care and treatment are also well formulated and recognized by physicians and sanitarians generally. Statisticians have given us its history and told us about its terrible ravages and have demonstrated its cost in dollars and cents of the nation. The work of education and prevention must be carried on. It only remains for the people to insist that health bodies be supplied with funds and equipment to push the work which has been so promisingly begun.

Most Earlington People Have a Weak Part and Too Often It's The Back.

Everyone has a weak spot. Too often it's a bad back. Twinges follow every sudden twist. Dull aching keeps up, day and night. Tells you the kidneys need help—For backache is really kidney aches.

Cure backache and urinary ills. Earlington people recommend the remedy.

Mrs. H. C. Smith, Earlington, Ky., says: "I was afflicted with kidney trouble for years I had severe pains in the small of the back and whenever I stooped or lifted, the attacks were practically acute. My back ached at night and when I arose in the morning, I was easily tired, felt languid and was frequently troubled by headaches and attacks of nervousness and dizziness. I knew that my kidneys were disordered, as the secretions contained sediment and were much too frequent in passage. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I produced a supply and received relief from the time I began taking them. The use of two boxes completely cured me. I will recommend Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity."

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

FOR YOUR HEALTH'S SAKE

GET YOUR OXYGEN.

It is of the utmost importance that human beings have an abundance of oxygen at all times. This means day and night, summer and winter. It is scarcely necessary to give this sort of advice for the summer season; but, when the weather gets cold many people are afraid of cold air and others think it is a waste of fuel to heat fresh, cold air, so they keep it out.

This is poor economy, to say the least. In fact, it costs more, as a rule; that is, if you figure your health and earning capacity as having any monetary value.

The Spirit Realm

Material Evidence of Its Existence Small

By WILLIAM SLOANE KENNEDY,
Author and Translator of Flammarion and Lombroso.

SYCHIC research deserves immense respect. But it is to be feared that we must put up higher towers yet in order to obtain the real soul-marconigrams.

So far, it is evident that telepathy, secondary personality, the double lobe of the brain, the unsuspected mystery and richness of the universal mind-stuff and the deeper grasp on its powerful currents (perhaps radio-active or electric) by rare and abnormal personality suffice to explain nearly all the wonders of the seance, astounding as these are. The spiritualists have checkit their great muckie bird of spiritism out of the wee egg of psychic research. But their theory does not cut up so fat as it looks. And they often cheat. In dealing with them a man must keep an eye on his partner, as did the Irish gentleman who danced with the bear. But then, the existence of pinchbeck does not, of course, prove the nonexistence of gold. The real trouble is that the world which the spirits reveal is not worth having, and Prof. Huxley had good warrant for blistering them with the silk snapper of his wit.

Of two evils choose the third. Annihilation is bad, and spiritualism is bad; so some of us must stick to the time-honored resource of reserved judgment, and some cling to faith. As for me, I should certainly prefer "the delicious repose of Nirvana" to the dreary and trivial life revealed by the spiritualists' "spirits."

I have said there are things that stagger me. There are apparitions of the living and dying and the dead, and cases of clairvoyance, that telepathy and supernormal psychic power have not yet explained. The most amazing, and the latest, thing is the phantasmal projections, or materializations, of duplicate limbs and half or whole human bodies, seen by so many cool and cautious observers (Bottazzi, Crookes, Lombroso) slowly and weirdly emerging from, and remerging in, the bodies of tranced psychics, such as Eusapia Palladino, who was chained down by Bottazzi, a few months ago, manacled in bonds, lead sealed to the floor of his laboratory, and yet performed her miracles just the same. "Phantasmal bodies," did I say?—nay, warm and breathing bodies of flesh and blood, temporary improvisations or duplicates of the medium, drawing their real unreal life by deadly exhaustion from his or her substance.

I received from Prof. Lombroso, in manuscript, not long ago, an explanation of this marvel, which he has later apparently discarded. He suggested that as brain waves are proved to be transmitted (in telepathy), so they may be transformed—transformed into motor forces. I would add that what proves these dark phantasmal limbs that grope around the seance cabinet, like the fearsome tentacles of H. G. Wells' Martians, to be not spirit forms is the fact that complete phantasms of this kind invariably duplicate the mental and psychical characteristics of the mediums, or at any rate never show a higher or lower range of character. The truth is, that myriad-roamed microcosm, the brain, is an electro-psychic dynamo in close connection with the ocean of raw mind-stuff, which enters it at times with such energy as almost to rend it.

So, when all is said, we must still call these necromantic creations of psychic force and the subjective reality of apparitions but discoveries in supernormal psychology whereby the ghosts of Banquo and King Hamlet became sober facts of twentieth century science.

William Sloane Kennedy

Little Psychology Dangerous

By EMILY COLE.

Verily, a little psychology is a dangerous thing. Every woman does not know, but it behoves her to learn, that the most hazardous thing one can do to a perfectly good and altogether smooth-running love affair is to attempt to analyze it. It is well to remember that no sort of human affection, no sort of human love, and above all else no sort of sex love—and I care not how pure, how beautiful, how holy that sentiment is—can survive the scientific searchlight without becoming a shriveled, distorted and hideous thing. As the dissector's knife and scalpel may in a threice make havoc of the beautiful Phryne herself; as the practical hand of the botanist in his quest for dry and arid knowledge, may pluck the delicately fashioned orchid to tatters—so may a man and woman by dissection destroy the fair form of love, and tear to tatters the "red, red rose" of passionate attachment.

It is clearly, then, the better part of a woman's wisdom, when in love, to give no encouragement to this pastime, only too often a favorite one with young lovers. For while a woman can perhaps psychologize herself and her love for a man, and his love for her, in all the degrees from boiling point down to that frigid temperature where liquid air is said to boil upon ice; and while she can do it with impunity as regards her own heart and her own unalterable passion—just as when she was a little girl she consistently dismembered her doll to find it stuffed with sawdust, but loved it none the less for that—the same is not true of a man.

In other words, to put it briefly, to psychologize herself is not fatal to a woman in love; to psychologize himself is fatal to a man in love.

Physicians have within recent years made a closer investigation into the phenomena attending upon death than was ever before the case. It is no longer enough to base calculations on purely physiological facts, but in estimating the powers of the great leveller it is necessary to go deep into facts of a political, social and economic nature.

The variations of the curve of mortality are almost analogous in all countries when considered from the point of physiology. In all peoples we find the highest probability of death to exist in the first year of the infant's birth, the minimum probability being reached at the age of 13 in the case of males, and at 12 in the case of females. There is but a short period of "improbability," however, for, toward the age of 20, in the case of each sex, there appears again a rather high probability of death, which again decreases in the ratio of the previous cycle, down to the age of 50, when a high probability of death once more makes its appearance. In the case of women the probability of death is considerable around the age of 40.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible, but I can remove the pains and gauges of this dreadful disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made—a pure, dry, white powder. When I added this last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular warts, found in Rheumatism, are easily dissolved away, and the action of this remedy is directly as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

Pretty Nearly Correct.

Andreas Pellisarti, who said he lived somewhere in Mulberry street, was arraigned in the New York children's court charged with playing ball on the street. "Don't you know it's 'Yes, sir,'" sobbed Andreas. "Don't you know that you are likely to hurt somebody? The streets don't belong to you. Now tell me, son, to whom do the streets belong?" "De automobiles," answered the culprit. "Discharged," said the judge.

RIVERVIEW EXPOSITION.
Chicago's Greatest Amusement Enterprise Completed at a Cost of $5,000,000.

None of Chicago's other marvelous achievements equal the great amusement enterprise just launched:
RIVERVIEW EXPOSITION.

This exposition surpasses everything of its character since the original World's Fair. Five million dollars was expended to make a city of gold in Chicago's newest of beautiful parks.
Last season 7,600,000 persons visited the exposition. This year it will accommodate 10,000,000. A trip to Chicago would be incomplete without a visit there.

RIVERVIEW EXPOSITION surpasses Caesar's ancient Circus Maximus where 5,000 dancers entertained Rome. Five thousand dancers could be lost in any one of its courts, esplanades, causeways or wooded groves. That many show girls, trick riders, Indians and cowboys are used in "Frontier Day Peter's" alone.

Twice as many are accommodated in the amphitheater, where Mexican bullfights occur. Wild beasts and dangerous animals daily meet thrilling contests for life and death. A Spanish band of 100 pieces discourses national music. Many military bands render open air concerts. The industrial exhibit includes wireless telegraphy, flying machines, dirigible balloons, aeroplanes and other mechanical marvels.

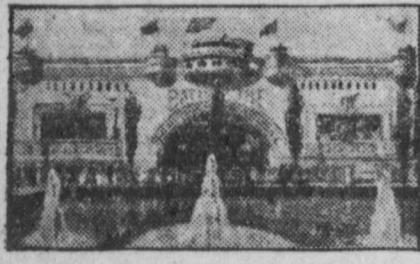

RIVERVIEW EXPOSITION's matchless attraction is "The Creation." This stupendous scene, specially painted by Biblical characters of the Garden of Eden, is destined to attract world-wide attention. It is the product of the genius of E. W. McConnell, builder of several world's fairs, and his staff of a hundred artists.

The scene is the Valley of the Euphrates, where tradition locates Eden. Awed spectators view as near to its reproduction as man may conceive. The great religious drama closely follows the Scriptures.

"Then first a void, then darkness, dawn and light; separation of the sky,
the earth and the waters; the beginning of life in the air and the waters, birds and fishes, creeping and crawling things, celestial anthems of unseen spirit hosts;
the creation of man—dust. But their temptation, transgression and expulsion by Angel Gabriel, who drives them forth with a flaming sword."

A great $25,000 pipe organ intones appropriate music. Its deep tubes produce the murmur of forest small life. Flashes of lightning and angry storms are made by electrical and water effects. Space forbids an adequate description of this magnificent spectacle.

Another great novelty is "The Races," an English panama. Fifty horses attached to chaises raise over the highway to Coventry.

RIVERVIEW EXPOSITION's "Court of Honor" has never been equalled since the Ancient Hanging Gardens of Babylon. It is a labyrinth of crystal water, through which dash myriads of silver and gold fish. The limpid edges are fringed with emerald lawn set in rows of stately Lombardy poplars. Cascade fountains play prismatic sprays high overhead, casting misty spray down into the lagoon. Fantastic facades and white pavilions gleam through the trees as a marble setting for the beautiful landscape.

"Over Niagara Falls" reproduces on a mammoth scale the famous waterfall.

The inspiring strands of great bands, softer tones of orchestras, sounds of merriment from joyous throngs, sunlit waters and forestry, gay show-places, the whirr of aerial planes, flying minstrels, whistlers of miniature railroads, vocalization of the animals of "Circle D Ranch," chanting Indians, the familiar "rooting" enthusiasts in the baseball park, the silent onward movement of the river that courses through the great park and illusory of action that part pleasure, mystery and delight make RIVERVIEW EXPOSITION a piece of magic, the like of which the world has never seen.

FRESH AIR FOR THE SICK.

Nothing is more common than fresh air. It is all pervading and provided by nature. It is free to all who will take it. We all need it and all have to have it. The sick need it more than the well, and yet there are those who think the windows in the sickroom must be kept closed. As a matter of fact, the one best thing we can do for the sick is to see to it that they have an abundance of fresh air all the time.

Central City, Ky., May 26.—Four children who were burned during the commencement exercises here last night are Mrs. Boyd's school died Tuesday. They are:

Selma Clay, aged 5; Dorothy Clay, 8 years; Nell McCahey, 5 years; Louis Marshall, 8 years.

Rena May Miller, aged 5 years, may recover.

Business has suspended in this little mining city as a result of the tragedies.

Applause following a drill proved too much for Dorothy Clay who dropped her lamp and ignited her dress, and those of other children on the stage.

The house was in darkness and a panic was averted only by men who threw their coats about the screaming children.

STANDARD SILENT AT ROGERS' RITE

THROUGHOUT THE WORLD BIG

HIS HONOR.

EULOGIZED BY PASTOR FRIEND

Simple Rites of Unitarian Church Were Followed in Accordance With the Wishes of Mr. Rogers.

New York, May 22.—Every unit of the industrial and commercial machinery of the Standard Oil Co. throughout the world halted in reverence while eulogies were being spoken and the last rites pronounced in the Church of the Messiah over the body of Henry H. Rogers, master of a half hundred millions.

Rarely in the history of a commonwealth have so many men prominent in the big affairs of every walk of life assembled at the obsequies of a departed friend.

While the 50,000 employees of the gigantic oil corporation in every quarter of the globe paused with bared heads, Rev. Robert Collyer, pastor of the church and lifelong friend of the departed man, uttered his eulogy in a voice choked with emotion.

"As the years roll by," he said, "sweeter and sweeter will grow the memory of Henry H. Rogers. It has been given to but few men to know the many, many kind and good things our friend has done in his modest, quiet way. There is no time for a sermon, and I can but speak of a few of the deeds inspired by his great, tender heart."

No less tenderly Rev. John Haines Holmes spoke of the departed member of his congregation. Chosing his text from the twenty-third Psalm, the associate pastor gave words of comfort to the bereaved family.

The coffin was escorted from the home to the church by 16 pallbearers, and when the cortage arrived every available seat was filled and the respectful crowd outside testified to the sympathy of the city.

The pallbearers were Rogers' intimate friends and associates—Wm. Rockefeller, John D. Archbold, E. T. Bedford, James A. Moffett, Samuel L. Clemens, E. H. Harriman, Raymond Dupuy, Elbert H. Gary, Melville E. Stone, John D. Ryan, James M. Beck, Charles A. Peabody, Dr. C. C. Rice, George W. Perkins, Col. A. G. Payne and Gen. James Gordon.

In accordance with the wishes of Mr. Rogers, the services followed the simple rites of the Unitarian church. The floral offerings, consisting principally of American Beauty roses and lilies of the valley, were banked in exquisite profusion across the chancel to the height of 20 feet.

Among those who attended the funeral in a body were the intimates of Mr. Rogers in the Lotus club, the department heads from the general offices of the Standard Oil Co. and other financiers who have been identified with him.

After the funeral, which began at 10 o'clock, the family and about 25 friends accompanied the body to the Grand Central station, whence the funeral party proceeded to the ancestral home at Fairhaven, Mass., where the body will lie in state until the interment.

CARE OF THE EXTREMITIES.

Medical men tell us that thousands of people die every year for no other reason than they neglected to take proper care of their arms, lower limbs and feet.

Improper clothing of the extremities generally means colds, sore throats, pleurisy, pneumonia, inflammation of the stomach and bowels, or any one of many other serious ailments.

Children, too, are often shamefully neglected in the matter of sufficient clothing or covering for the legs and feet. Heavy stockings and good, thick shoes are cheaper than are doctors and undertakers.

Exaggeration.

The century is young; the world also young, as worlds go; and our country compared with many, is very young. Exaggeration is one of the faults to which youth is peculiarly subject—and from which age is not wholly free. To be an artist—in words, in color, with the chisel, on the stage, or in whatever medium—and not to exaggerate, sometimes and to some extent, might fairly be considered an impossibility—Chicago Dial.

The Well-Dressed Man.

The recipe for being well dressed is to go to a good tailor, get really good clothes, pay a really good price for them, and let them be perfectly unostentatious and unremarkable in every way.—Gentlewoman.

Lion Hunting in the Molopo Country

By Percy Selous

Wherever guns are made and sold and game is hunted for the sake of the sport of it the name of Selous is familiar. The stories of his achievements circle the globe and tens of thousands of lesser hunters feel honored to have hunted with him on occasion or to have crossed his track or followed his trail. A confirmed nomad, a soldier of the chase by irresistible predilection, he has spent his life hunting, trapping and traveling, sometimes in the Canadian woods, sometimes in the forests of the Andes, sometimes in the passes of the Central Asian mountains, sometimes in the northern ice, sometimes in the African jungle, and the story of his hunting experiences is a romance of fact and adventure. A member of this famous family of hunters is accompanying Theodore Roosevelt into the jungles of East Africa.

WE HAD had very little sleep all night, owing to the prowling around and roaring of lions, attracted by the offal of a giraffe which I had shot the previous afternoon, and had dragged bodily up to the wagon. The night was, however, so dark that I could not get a view, and, although I once thought I could make out the form of a lioness in the gloom, I concluded it was not best to fire, as, in the event of my only wounding her, she would have had much in her favor should she have attacked us in such darkness. I was not sorry when day broke, for the oxen and horses were very uneasy; but the skerm was good, having been strengthened a couple of days before, not that a lion, having once made up his mind to attack, would be kept out by such means. However, nothing occurred further than the roaring and, after a hurried breakfast of coffee and giraffe steak, I and Bob, one of the black boys, took up the spoors of the lion, which was plain enough about and around the camp.

All we had left of the giraffe was represented by a few splinters of bones which the hyenas had polished after the head had gorged himself. For some distance along the river bank the country was pretty well wooded, whilst away to the north stretched the Kalahari, dotted here and there with scant timber clumps; but otherwise a vast sea of sand. I did not take my horse, as he was a bit stiff from the tumble of the day before; he had also somewhat renewed his lameness, which was scarcely to be wondered at, considering the country I had been galloping him over. The lion had made direct for a thick patch of thorns and had evidently laid up there. I had no dog. My last had been so injured by a Koodoo bull, which had literally disembowled him, that I had been compelled to shoot him. This was a greater loss to me than I can express, for a good terrier is simply invaluable.

On the Track of a Lioness.

The brush was so thick that it was next to impossible to get through it, and therefore, as it was clear around, and there was no fear of making a conflagration, I set fire to it as the best apparent means of ousting our game. Telling Bob, my Kafr driver, to keep close behind me, I went a little further round the cover and was just in time to see a lioness break away, but so far off that I did not fire, preferring to let her go, in hopes of getting a more favorable chance for a shot. By this time the blaze had got so powerful that we, too, were glad to get away from it; 140 degrees, or thereabouts, was sufficient of itself as a temperature, without additional warmth.

The lioness made straight for another bit of brush, whither we went after her, and, though the thorns were quite thick enough, I decided to follow her in. My boy did not relish accompanying me, nor could I exactly blame him; for, though a fair hunter and a brave enough lad in ordinary, he did not like lions, his father having been killed and his brother badly mauled by one. It was rather difficult keeping her spoors, but after some trouble and considerable wear and tear, I espied her lying on a bare spot, watching me intently. Her head was resting between her paws and, as quickly as possible, I fired between her eyes, and could have sworn I planted the bullet there, for she was not above thirty paces from me. Turning to take my spare carbine from Bob, I found that he had vanished. But the lioness never stirred, and I was hurriedly reloading when she suddenly jumped up and dashed further into the thicket.

Unparliamentary language relieves the feelings, if nothing more; so, after having anathematized poor Bob, I once were plunged after the lioness, wondering how our next meeting would come off. There was plenty of blood, just where her head had lain, and also enough to guide me easily on the tracks she had taken. Indeed, before I was aware of it, I was almost on top of her. Stepping steadily back—she lay directly from me—I drew another bead between her ears at the base of her skull, and let fly. This time there could be no doubt as to its being effective, for, as I stood, I could see where the bullet bored right into her brain. The lioness never so much as moved, so I stepped up and examined her. My first bullet had struck her too low beneath the eyes to reach her brain. It had torn through the cartilage of the nose and down her throat, momentarily stunning and so stupefying her that her last rush was a random one; but she was dead, to all intents and purposes, and doubtless was not in need of my second ball. Her skin was simply of no value, and could only have been an eyesore, so I did not bother to take it off, only keeping her skull, and returned to the wagon to rate my heedless driver soundly.

Awakened by the Roar of a Lion.

My theory was that a lioness would probably not be altogether solitary, as is sometimes the case with animals of the male sex. Acting on this hypothesis, I determined to cast around and see if I could not make out further signs of lions. I did not need meat. There was plenty for some time, and the additional excitement attached to will go farther before it succumbs. Of the tiger I cannot speak, but the leopard and the jaguar, as also the puma, or mountain lion, partake more of the "cat" tenacity of life than does the lion of South Africa.

Tracking on High Ground.

The spoor led away towards some higher ground, intertwined with a tangled growth of creepers, and which looked just like the kind of harbor my game would be likely to take refuge in. I even thought I could discern some moving objects there. Anyway I followed the spoor right to where I had calculated I should find recent traces of the lions if they had not left the vicinity, and suddenly in the sun, at full length among the rocky boulders, I came across one. As I approached, he lazily raised his head and looked at me, at the same time uttering a low growl, as if annoyed at my intrusion. As he did not seem inclined to move further, and must have descended and climbed the side of the little kloof which intervened between us before he could reach me, though I did not anticipate this, I walked on towards him, till I got to my side of the ravine, about thirty paces from him. He now seemed as if he had thought that he had permitted me to encroach far enough on to his domain, and raised himself on his forequarters, the tip of his tail twitching in a manner which I knew meant mischief should I wound him. If he moved away I might not get a better chance, though I wished the distance had been greater. I believe she would have gone quietly away and taken her cubs with her, if I had not interfered. The tenets ventilated by a certain explorer of prominence, who evidently considers it a heinous crime to kill lions and similar gentle, useful creatures, had not then come to my knowledge, not that they would have influenced me at all, if such had been the case, and her rich, tawny skin was sufficient temptation for me; so I aimed at her throat, which presents a much easier and safer mark than that of the lion, with its matted and tangled mane, sufficient at times to offer considerable impediment to a bullet. She must have raised her head as I fired, for my ball passed harmlessly by; fortunately, too, for me, missing the youngster immediately behind her, or a pretty hullabaloo might have been the result. All the same, I was in no enviable position, with my carbine empty, in close proximity to these three cats. I followed the old adage of keeping my eye intently fixed on that of the lioness; whether that had had anything to do with her refraining from charging I will not pretend to say, but she did remain still whilst I mechanically reloaded and as mechanically brought up my weapon. Taking more careful aim this time, I potted her right in her white cravat, sending her in a somersault over the young ones to their no little astonishment, and, what with the roaring of the lioness and the row made by the cubs, there was quite a Bedlam. Then, appearing to realize their danger, they hunting such game as I was after had a great fascination. It was no use my talking to Bob, and the other boy would probably have fled at the first sight of a lion, so I started off myself and tramped about until I was pretty well exhausted, without finding any further indications of "Isilouan." Much disgusted, I returned to camp, pleased that I had not decided to inspan and trek farther, without satisfying myself that I had not passed a lion by; for I meant moving as soon as ever the moon was old enough to guide us at all. That evening I whiled away the time while daylight lasted in cleaning the skull of the lioness and entering up my diary for the last week or so. My clothing also sadly needed patching up after the wait-a-bit thorns of the day before. Then I turned in early and was soon in the realm of dreamland, to be awakened by the unmistakable roar of a lion.

I had been right after all, but only felt half pleased at being disturbed. There was nothing for it but to mount guard again, and another broken night's rest was the consequence. Still the animals did not seem to approach any nearer. By the sound they were evidently close by the water. As soon as the morning snack was over I set the boys to work to get everything in readiness for inspanning, and started off once again, this time keeping close along the bank of the river as the most likely way of coming across the spoor of the lion. I still thought it prudent to rest my horse, as when we got farther out into the veldt I should find it much more difficult to dispense with him than where I was, with pretty well of cover. A couple of miles down the river I found where the lions had been drinking. There were several of them—three, anyway, as I could distinguish from the pug marks—two full-grown ones and a cub, or cubs.

This discovery caused me to reflect blit as to the wisdom of proceeding single-handed. However, I must either give up the idea of the hunt altogether, or tackle them myself; for I had no confidence in the boys at such work, and I would much rather be without them than with them. Yet I felt it was a risky undertaking and recollections of a previous encounter in which I had been knocked senseless by a lion in a death charge flitted through my brain. If I had only had a dog I should not have thought anything of it, but my doubts were speedily dismissed and I stepped briskly forward. A lion dies a lot easier than a grizzly bear or a jaguar, as I had proved, and even a deer with a bullet through its heart

Getting a Lioness with Her Cubs.

I don't think she meant charging, however; one can tell intuitively pretty correctly when this is going to happen.

SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE LEAD

THREE ITEMS OF TARIFF BILL ARE AGREED UPON AS DESIRED BY ALDRICH.

DUTY ON LEAD REDUCED 1-8C.

Ten Republicans Vote With Democrats on Curtis Amendment and Borah Voted With Republicans—Tariffs Withdrawn.

Washington, May 21.—The senate distributed its attention among the three items in the tariff bill providing a duty on an extract of chestnut bark used in tanning, known as quebracho, on cottonseed oil and on white lead. On each of these articles, the senate was led by the committee on finance, although the committee was induced to change its original suggestions on both white lead and cotton seed oil.

The lead duty is fixed by the committee was originally 2-78 cents per pound, but Mr. Curtis, who is a member of the committee suggested a reduction of 1-8c a pound, bringing the figure down 2-34 cents and Chairman Aldrich accepted the reduction. Even this increase over the house provision excited sharp criticism especially from Mr. Curtis' colleague, Mr. Bristol, who contended that the duty would prove to be a direct tax on the consumers.

When the vote was taken, the committee obtained its usual triumph, the vote standing 41 to 32 in favor of the Curtis amendment.

As usual Senators Beveridge, Bristol, Brown, Burkett, Clapp, Cummings, Dolliver, Gamble, La Follette and Nelson voted with the Democrats. Senator Borah voted with the Republicans.

Probably the most interesting contest of the day was that over the question as to whether there should be any duty on cottonseed oil. Senators Tillman, Bacon and Money made an intense fight against the senate provision fixing a tariff of three cents a gallon, on the ground that it would injure the sale of cottonseed and after the controversy had gone on for some time, Mr. Aldrich withdrew the provision.

Mr. LaFollette sought to reduce the duty on quebracho to one quarter of one cent a pound, but his amendment to that effect was rejected 29 to 38.

Mr. Daniel led the fight for a higher rate, exciting much interest because of his advocacy of low duties in the past. The committee had reduced the house rate and the Virginia senator in whose state are several quebracho factories sought to have that figure restored. He did not succeed and the duty was fixed at half a cent per pound instead of 7-8 cent as he proposed.

DRAWING THE COLOR LINE

New York Justice Holds Negro and White Man Do Not Suffer Equal Humiliation.

New York, May 22.—A negro and a white man do not suffer equal humiliation in the eyes of law for false arrest, according to the appellate division of the supreme court, which sustained an order of Justice Dugro, reducing the amount of damages awarded George Griffin, a Pullman porter from $2,500 to $300. The negro was arrested in Montreal charged with stealing a pocketbook, but the charge was not substantiated. He brought suit against Daniel H. Brady, a New York manufacturer, who caused his arrest.

In his order, Justice Dugro said: "While in some senses the negro under the law is just as good a man as the president of the United States it would be argument to say he is just as good in some respects. The damages in a case of this kind depend on a man's standing and circumstances. If he is colored, that fact should be considered."

THOUGHTS OF THE OLD HOME

When All Else Is Forgotten, Those Linger in the Memory.

You can't forget, no matter how hard you may try, for your old home, the one you first knew, is so deeply impressed upon your mind that all the glories, the riches and the blandishments of modern times cannot blot the picture out, and in spite of all you go back to it by the memory route, and linger there often, and more often as the years gather around you.

That is why you like to read of the old days, even though you would not have them return.

Do you ever tell your children about your old home, and of your visits to granddaddy's; your tours of exploration through old attics infested with wasp's nests, and hanging with dried herbs, seed corn, sickles and one truck and another?

And, maybe, some time you may have slept in an attic under a clapboard roof through which you could see the stars, and through which sifted fine snow when the wind was strong. Nor were you cold, for the home-made blankets and the quilts the girls had pieced, and the coverlets that grandmother had woven were warm on top, while the thick straw tick, and the soft feather tick formed a nest that would be "warm and comfy" anywhere.

You would hardly regard these as essential to your comfort in your new house, but they were real blessings then, and are blessed to recall and talk about now.

Would you forget these?—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

HAVE STRANGE SOUND TO US.

Peculiar Names Common in English County of Lancashire.

"Lancashire folk," one of them is reminded to tell us, "have their own ideas regarding Christian names, and one of the curious appellations they delight in appears in the London Daily News in an account of the clever way in which a runaway horse was stopped at Preston. The hero's name was Doctor Whittaker, and it is no uncommon one in County Palatine, where fond parents often give the seventh son that courtesy title, which leads to much misunderstanding when he grows up. Another freak is the reduplication of the surname, such combinations as Briggs Briggs, Yates Yates and Fish Fish being fairly frequent.

Compounds of the Sarah Alice, Phoebe Ann and John Henry type are," adds this authority, "greatly in evidence, and both names are always used in addressing the fortunate possessors—so much so that parents will sometimes have two of their offspring christened Sarah, the girls being in their opinion amply distinguished by the fact that one is called Sarah Jane and the other Sarah Alice."

Seeing and Thinking.
Most people see an object when they think of it. They can see before their eyes a geometrical drawing or the figures on a chessboard when they think of them. In order to think at all most men make use of images, though they may be of different kinds. Thus, one man when he thinks of "Italy" sees just the printed word; another sees the country's outline on a map; another may see the country spread out before him, with its villages and towns smoldering in the plains. Psychologists are beginning to classify the different aids or images of which men make use. Some, for example, hear the words of their thoughts within themselves; others read them, as if the words were written generally in black on a white ground.

The Queen of S.
A correspondent sends an amusing story of a visit which the archbishop of Canterbury recently paid to a certain Sunday school. For a few minutes Dr. Davidson took in hand a class of small girls who were going over the story of Solomon. "Now," he asked, "who was the great queen who traveled so many miles and miles to see the king?" No one answered. "Why, you all know. The queen who came to see the king?" Still no one seemed to remember. "You do know, I am sure," persisted Dr. Davidson. "The name begins with S; and she was a very great queen." Just then a little hand shot up, and a shrill voice cried: "Please, I know, the Queen of Spades." M. A. P.

Sad is Sad.
A mother, who was rather fond of the cheaper 10, 20, 30-cent melodrama, one afternoon took her young daughter, who had grown to consider herself above that sort of thing.

The daughter was bored, but the mother was greatly interested, and finally, when the heroine had got into a seemingly inextricable position, broke down and sobbed heartily.

"Mother, I wouldn't cry here," whispered the daughter significantly, accented the last word.

"Let me alone," replied the other mysteriously. "If a thing is sad, it's sad; I can't cry according to price."

Warning to Householders.
The frank statement of a burglar who was "caught with the goods" after a good description of him had been obtained from a pawnbroker, should serve as a warning to careless occupants of houses, says the Albany Journal. This candid housebreaker unburdened himself as follows:

"It is easy to rob houses. In my two-months' experience I have had to break into only one of the nine houses I have robbed, the others all being easy by reason of unlocked windows."

(From the Paducah Evening Sun.)

To every thinking person it must occur that the most lavish and the richest natural resources of any state would be as naught were it not for the master minds that organize and develop them. The promoter and the capitalist are therefore among the most useful of men in this country today and through the largeness of their intellects and the constructive qualities of their minds, thousands of people are blessed and their great work extends out into the world, influencing every class of industrial enterprise to a more far-reaching and powerful extent than any but a studious mind can grasp. The promoter and capitalist achieves wealth naturally and deservedly, yet this is acquired at the cost of infinite study, of long and tireless effort of great patience and perseverance against obstacles often tremendous, which would easily dispirit a less courageous man. To illustrate this there can possibly be no better example than that offered by the St. Bernard Mining Company which we feel free to say, unsolicited, has performed a great work in the development of Kentucky resources and has brought competency and happiness to a large number of thrifty people. This corporation is engaged in drawing great results from Mother Earth, but it gives back much to the natural resources of the state and to humanity. To review the origin and achievement of the St. Bernard Mining Company we will begin at the time of its inception which occurred in 1870 by the merging of the interests and efforts of a few clear-headed, and sagacious men. The company secured large property holdings in a hitherto unimproved and undeveloped section of Kentucky. Coal having been discovered it was necessary to open mines in order to bring forth the underground richness and to do that in any paying measure large wealth and expenditure was the first necessity. The St. Bernard Company supplied this and at the present time has in successful operation nine large and productive mines. So actively have these mines been worked that they produce a large percentage of the entire coal output of the state. Around these mines now lie the greatest coal fields of Kentucky, which have been of tremendous importance in raising the reputation of the state among sister commonwealths, and which have contributed immeasurably to the State's support through taxes, the stimulation of commercial activities and a greatly increased population. The St. Bernard Company's mines are located on the Louisville & Nashville R. R. and the Illinois Central R. R. in Hopkins and Webster counties and the heavy coal traffic from the mines has done much toward the development and extension of the railroad service which is employed by all the people in the state and by tourists generally. More explicitly, the mines are located at Earlington, Mortons Gap, Barnsley and Providence and St. Charles, Kentucky. They are designated as Earlington, No. 9 and No. 11, Hecla, Arnold, Barnsley, Diamond, Fox Run, and Shamrock. The coal produced is bituminous, is rich in oils and is marketed in the states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana, Illinois and Mississippi, and they ship coal by rail entirely. The main offices are established at Earlington, Ky., and the company has opened two important branch offices and yards in Paducah. These are located in such a way as to afford excellent facilities and are designed chiefly to supply the local trade, which, with the large industries of this city, is of heavy volume, and to promptly supply patrons and the trade in the contiguous territory. The splendid business ability of the company's management and its farsighted sagacity is shown by the great development of its property and the consequent impetus such improvements have afforded to other property holders in that vicinity.

The Company owns extensive tracts of land in fee simple as well as the mineral rights under some thousands of acres as a reserve for future coal operations. A portion of the area is set aside for farms and on other tracts the company has now splendid young forests of trees of various kinds that will become of great future value to the mining operations. The company has now 1 1/4 million young black walnut trees, many of them fifteen to eighteen years old. Since 1905 has planted 160,000 Catalpa Speciosa on 230 acres of ground, 200,000 black locust on 280 acres of ground and 10,000 tulip trees on twenty acres. Their extensive farms are chiefly devoted to the growing of hay to feed the live stock employed in their mining operations. The Company's farms also yield considerable crops of corn, fruits and chief coal mining center of the state of Kentucky. Large quantities of grain, hay and other farm produce are annually bought of the farmers of Hopkins county by the company and by the thousands of people resident in the several towns dependent upon its mining operations, and the company buys annually many thousand dollars worth of rough lumber and timber for its mining operations and building purposes. Through the company's activities railroad shops coal yards, in which is stored an extensive railroad yards have usually enormous stocks of the vari-turer, the farmer, with the ammunition of business and industry. And this money is gathered in other states and cities and brought home for distribution. The officers are John B. Atkinson, president, and Geo. C. Atkinson, secretary and treasurer.

The St. Bernard Mining Company maintains general wholesale and retail agencies in Paducah, Louisville, Nashville, Memphis and Evansville, where they have numerous large railroad shops coal yards, in which is stored an of free graded and high schools, located in a modern and commodious brick building that is not surpassed in construction or equipment by any school house in Kentucky. There is also a similar building for the colored school children. Both these schools are taught for nine months in each year. Both these buildings were erected and paid for entirely by the St. Bernard company and a liberal appropriation is made annually out of the company's treasury to support these schools, for which the public school money is not nearly sufficient. There is no local school tax. There are, also, two free public libraries, one for white and the other for colored people. The buildings and the books and periodicals are supplied by the company and the librarians are paid out of its treasury.

Earlington has two banks with aggregate deposits of $210,000.

The Government Rifle Range is Earlington's latest important acquisition, located above the head of Loch Mary on a tract of land leased to Uncle Sam by the St. Bernard Mining Company for a term of twenty years. The Government has spent more than six thousand dollars equipping this range for the use of the Kentucky State Guard; more particularly for the Third Regiment. This is one of the three rifle ranges which it has been announced would be located in Kentucky. The other two have not been built. A regimental camp has been located in the outskirts of Earlington, which will be lighted by electricity and supplied with water from the city mains. Here the Third Regiment will go into camp for the first time on the 10th day of August of this year for annual encampment and rifle practice. The Earlington military company has the highest record of any in the state for standing, at all past annual inspections.

This is in part and briefly the story of Kentucky's pioneer coal mining company and some of the activities and improvements in outside affairs that have followed and been stimulated and produced by the development of the mining operations of the St. Bernard Mining Company of Earlington, Ky.

FOR YOUR HEALTH'S SAKE

PLAYING AT HYGIENE.

Did it ever occur to you that when you see children playing in the open air and romping in the sunshine they are playing hygiene, which means health?

If only we older people would throw dignity aside and play the game more than we do we would be much better off than we are.

To be sure, the game need not be as violent as "black man," "tag," or "three cornered cat," but long walks in the open air, tending a small garden or cultivating flowers instead of tin cans and rubbish in the back yard, would be pretty certain to produce good results in many ways.

PASSIVE VIRTUE NOT ENOUGH.

Beware of making your moral staple consist of the negative virtues. It is good to abstain from all that is hurtful and sinful. But to make a business of it leads to emaciation of character, unless one feeds largely also on the more nutritious diet of active sympathetic benevolence.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.
